How's
Your Liver?

Is the Oriental salutation, knowing that good health cannot exist without a healthy Liver. When the Liver is torpid the Bowels are sluggish and constipated, the food lies in the stomach undig-ested, poisoning the blood; frequent headache ensues; a feeling of lassitude, despondency and nervousness indicate how the whole system is deranged. Simmons Liver Regulator has been the means of restoring more people to health and happiness by giving them a healthy Liver than any agency known on earth.
It acts with extraordinary power and efficacy.

NEVER BEEN DISAPPOINTED.
As a general family remedy for dyspepsia, torpid Liver, Constipation, etc., I hardly ever see anything else, and have never been disappointed in the effect produced. It seems to be almost a perfect cure for all diseases of the stomach and bowels.

HOW TO TRAIN MICE.

SOME SECRETS OF THE METHOD
EMPLOYED BY AN EXPERT.

Inexhaustible Patience is Required First of All—Judicious Feeding Must Be Observed—The Mouse Must Worry the Little Creatures.

Ferdinand Senn knows more about raising white mice probably than any other man in this country, and Thomas Moody knows more about training them.
Before an explanation of how they are trained, Mr. Senn took a cunning little mouse, white as snow, from his coat pocket and put it on his shoulder. The mouse looked around for a moment, then ran across Mr. Senn's back and sat down contentedly on the other shoulder.
Before setting it at liberty he held the mouse loosely in his left hand and stroked its head and back with his right.

"Do they never bite you?"
Mr. Moody answered for him, for Mr.
Moody does the training: "Never, if they are properly handled. When a boy picks up a white mouse he is very likely to squeeze him tight to keep him safe;
then the mouse turns around and bites.

But take them up so gently without squeezing them at all, and they do not think of biting. See here."

He took the mouse from Mr. Senn's hand, held its tail between his forefinger and thumb and held it above his head.

"They do not mind that at all," he went on. "They are what we call pre-sensible—they can support their weight by the tail. When this fellow runs down a smooth stick you will see him coil his tail around it for a brace. But if I should squeeze his tail a little too hard, or accidentally press my sharp nails against it, he would twist around and bite me."

HUNGER AND WORRY.

"What do you feed them on—cheese?"
"Hardly," he replied. "No food is so good for them as oats—just dry oats.
Some breeders bring them up on bread and milk, but that is not as good as oats.
On oats they keep cleaner and do better.
The dry oats, of course, makes them thirsty, and then you can give them a little bread and milk, squeezed out pretty dry. But it is well to have them thirsty sometimes, when you are training them—and hungry, too, for that matter."

"Do you mean to say that you starve them into tricks or drive them to it by thirst?"

"Not so bad as that," he answered.
"But if a mouse is hungry and he is to walk over a string bridge and he sees some oats on the other side he will go quicker. There are two great secrets about making them do as you wish. The first is patience. A boy can soon learn to train a white mouse nearly as well as I can if he has the patience. But the boy generally tires of it in ten minutes where I keep it up for two hours—or half a day, if necessary. I worry them into it."

"That's the other secret," he went on.
"Worry 'em! Suppose you want a mouse to climb a stick, pick up a little flag that you have put there and bring it down.
You take the mouse when he's hungry to begin with; you tie a grain or two of oats to the flagstick and you put the mouse at the foot of the stick. He won't go up, of course. Well, when he turns around to run away you set him back again with his nose to the stick. If he runs away fifty times set him back fifty-one times. That worries him. Boost him up a little; give him a start. You may even have a little twig and switch him, but gently. He soon sees what you want and up he goes. When he finds the oats he is satisfied and comes down to eat them. Next time he will do it without half the trouble, and after a while he will run up and get the flag whenever you put him at the foot of the stick."

KEEP AT IT.
Teach the mouse a principle, you understand; not merely a trick. The principle in this case is taking something up in his mouth. In a short time he will take up anything you wish, whether it is a flagstick or a little toy ball—anything he can lift.

"Now, there's walking the tight rope," he continued. "That looks hard, but it is easy enough. You must have the string fastened to the floor at both ends, say four feet apart, and about a foot from each end you brace it up with a stick a foot or so long—just long enough to tighten the string. Use big twine at first, for that is easier; gradually you can make it smaller, till the mouse will walk a druggist's string.
They have sharp claws and a great grip in their feet. You take the mouse when he is hungry and thirsty and put some oats and bread and milk at one end of the bridge. At the other end you put the mouse. He will try to run across the door to the food, but bring him back.
Start him a little up the inclined plane.
He is smart and he soon learns that the only way to get that food is to cross the bridge. Then he crosses, and it is no trouble to him. Worry him into it.
You must not let the mouse tire you out
—you must tire the mouse out."—New York Sun.

Makes War on Oysters.

Did you ever hear of a man who was a victim of the oyster habit? The writer was in an uptown cafe the other evening, when a gray haired, full chested, big framed man came in and ordered Blue Point oysters. He ate a dozen, hesitated, as if in doubt, paid his check and went out. Three dozen oysters right down made one's eyes open, but the waiter said: "Oh, that's nothing.
He comes in here every night for raw oysters, sometimes four dozen. He's what I call an oyster eater. I don't believe he eats anything else."—New York Tribune.

Accounted For.

She—I wonder why the hair of professional musicians so often stands on end.
He—Easily accounted for. His hair is trying to get away from the commotion going on under the surface.—Pittsburg Bulletin.

SIZED UP AS A RUSTLER.

He Proved Quite Harmless, However.

Notwithstanding his Appearance.
He had on a cowboy's hat—he had long hair and fierce black eyes—there was a claw from the foot of a grizzly bear dangling from his watch chain.

You could size him up in one way
—he had killed his man, or perhaps half a dozen of them. If he hadn't fought Indians and stood up to the bad, bad men of the far west, then his looks believed him. He was a quiet, unostentatious man, as all nifty men are. He was reading a dime novel, as all game men do when they travel. Now and then he felt down the back of his neck to see if his bowie knife was cuddling up to his spine in a proper manner, and now and then he reached down to his boot legs to see that his cargo of revolvers hadn't shifted.

Three or four of us, after taking plenty of time to size him up, decided to ask him how and where he got the wound which had left the scar clear across his left cheek. He looked like the work of Sung Dai's tomahawk, but we wanted the particulars. So it was agreed that I should work him up to tell his story, and after a quarter of an hour of diplomacy I had shaped matters so I dared observe:

"That is a bad scar you have on your cheek, and there is no doubt a story connected with it?"

"Yes, sir, there is," he replied.

"We should like to hear the particulars, if you have no objection."

"Oh, the story don't amount to much," he modestly remarked.

"But you certainly had a close call.
How many Indians were around you?"

"Indians? I didn't see no Indians."

"Oh! Perhaps you were in a western stage when it was held up, and you got that scar in fighting off the road agents?"

"Never saw a road agent in my life," he answered.

"Tackled by a bad man perhaps?"

"Never saw a bad man."

"But you had a fight," I persisted.

"No, I didn't."

"Well, perhaps you'd be kind enough to explain how you got that scar?"

"I will. I went into a restaurant and ordered a pumpkin pie. The waiter brought me a squash pie instead. I kicked. The owner of the place, who was a woman, got mad and slashed me with an oil can knife. I afterward settled with her for three dollars in cash.
That's the story, sir."

"But why—why are you wearing that hat and other things belonging to a western terror?" I asked.

"These things? Oh, I got 'em of an actor for four dollars. He had to sell out or walk home, and as the walking wasn't good he sold out."

"And may I ask you who are?" I inquired, as an awful silence fell upon our crowd.

"Certainly you can. I've been working for a farmer near Monroe all summer for seven dollars a month and found, but I quit the other day and am going to Toledo to get a stock of stomach bitters to sell on the road. Needn't nobody be afraid of me. I ain't loaded, and if I was I ain't got the sand to go off. Never tackled but one man, and I ain't got through running away from him yet."

Then we went to the other end of the car and tried to call the convention to order and do some resolving, but it was a failure. Everybody seemed to want to sit and think.—Detroit Free Press.

The Sailor and His Pets.

Jack is fond of pets, and when at sea is allowed to cultivate that fondness to a certain extent. The most hard hearted shipowner does not object to having one or two stray dogs or cats provided with homes on his vessel. And Jack is very grateful for this indulgence. It affords him deep pleasure to hold in his loving though rough embrace the innocent creature who, either by a cheerful wag of the tail or a responsive purr, assures him that his attentions are appreciated, and that the fact of his being lacking in personal attractions is not taken into consideration.

Jack loves the poor creature just as tenderly as if he were perfect. The ship's cat may be lean and uninviting in appearance, but this does not prevent Jack from petting it. Other pets are sometimes kept on board ship. It is not unusual for seamen on vessels returning from tropical ports to have pet monkeys or parrots. The captain's wife, who has her own way sometimes, turns her bin into an aviary. Single captains have been known to keep pet on shipboard, although, as a rule, they seem ashamed to display any weakness of this description.—London Tit-Bits.

A Quaint Bit of Frolic.

To be enlivened when dead is more often the lot of a man than to be praised in life, but surely a quainter compliment was never paid a dead man than was received by Talleyrand, for when his decease was announced to one of his acquaintances, the latter exclaimed, "He must have had some good reason for lying! I think I will be at least ill myself," and forthwith went to bed.
Yet another compliment to a dead man was uttered by the Marchioness of who, when told that the celebrated physician Borden had been found dead in bed, exclaimed, "Ah! Death was so afraid of him that he did not dare attack him except when he was asleep."—London Standard.

Famine Carried Off 9,500,000 People.

The worst calamity from famine ever recorded took place in the years 1877 and 1878 in China. Complete crop failures took place in all the northern provinces, and the number of those who perished from want of food was estimated at 9,500,000. As the internal communications of a country are improved the danger of wholesale starvation is much lessened.—Providence Journal.

A TEACHER.

Preachers have preached me sermons.
I have a plenty of their sermons throughout all my relations have lectured.
My friends have lectured to me.

My feet have given me warnings.
And I have taken them not.
Friends and foes and relations
I never heed a jot.

Their words were the essence of wisdom.
There was nothing they didn't foresee:
And not one atom of all they said
Has ever remained with me.

They were staid and pat and solemn.
They were gray and wrinkled and old.
My teacher has cheeks of roses
And hair of the sun's own gold.

His words run into each other.
He stammers and babbles and cries:
He doesn't know he is powerful.
He never dreams he is wise.

But in three short years he has taught me
More than those graybeards staid Had taught in the seven and thirty
Before he came to this aid.

Strength and the Hair.

The discussion as to abundance of hair being evidence of strength has again come up, some arguing that there was nothing novel in Sampson's strength being in his hair, and others that as a rule the strongest men are least blessed with an abundant hair covering. There are necessarily exceptions to all rules, but most freaks of strength of modern times have luxuriant hair. There are five or six women now traveling with dime museum shows, lifting enormous weights with their hands or teeth, and performing other extraordinary feats of strength, and nearly all of them have magnificent heads of hair.

Among prize fighters the same rule applies, and although athletes generally keep their hair cut very close to the head, they usually have a very thick growth of hair and are seldom bald.

Ancient history is delved into a great deal in the discussion, but the fact remains that the strongest men of today have in almost every instance not only heavy heads of hair, but also quite a substantial growth on the chest and arms. It may be that excessive bodily vigor and activity promote the growth of hair, or that the hair itself is an evidence of strength, but whichever may be the cause and the effect, the combination exists as a very general rule.—

Funerals in the French Capital.

As a rule official funerals strike the inhabitants of this fair city with the same cheery enthusiasm as is inspired in an American town by the announcement that Barnum's circus is going to parade the streets. There is always a certain constraint in an Anglo-Saxon countries at the sight of a funeral, for Anglo-Saxons have a horror and fear of death which is nonexistent in the French character. The Parisians have no special respect for nor any marked dread of the hins of death. If a Parisian is bored ill or in trouble or is overburdened by financial troubles he is very apt to solve the problem of life by committing suicide, and so getting out of it all with perfect philosophy and serene indifference. Life in Paris runs much more smoothly from the fact that no one as a rule lives to be madly unhappy. The Parisians cease to live when they cease to enjoy.—Paris Cor. Philadelphia Telegraph.

A Process for Making Tin.

Heretofore it has been impossible to get lead to adhere to iron without the aid of tin. This can now be done by the following means: First, pickle the plate in a bath to remove the scale, a weak electric current being sent through the bath. Remove the plates to a bath of lime water and thence to one of fresh water. From this place them in a bath consisting of a neutral solution of zinc and stannic chlorides, thence to a drying chamber heated by steam. When dry place them in a bath of molten lead 98 1/2 per cent. pure.—New York Times.

Not Stimulating to the Liver.

A lady stopped another in a crowded store on Saturday to dilate on her wretched health. "The doctor told me I must go out every day and take exercise and air. I went to three funerals gers to me, but the cemeteries were out of town, and I thought the ride might stimulate my liver. But I don't know as I am a bit improved."—Philadelphia Record.

CONGRESSIONAL PROCEEDINGS.

Conflict of Opinion on the Silver Question—Weather Statement—A Christian Scientist on Trial For Manslaughter.

Conflict of Opinion.

WASHINGTON, February 2.—The Democratic caucus, which was to have been called for Friday evening next, to consider the silver question, has been abandoned, for the present, at least.

A SILVER TICKET.

In Eastern Nevada the proposition to nominate and elect a silver ticket, in the event of the Democrats and Republicans ignoring free coinage in their National platforms and nominating gold men for President, is meeting with general favor.

The Austin Advocate is with the JOURNAL for an independent electoral ticket in case the old parties give up gold bug Presidential candidates.

"To the above the Pioneer Record gives its hearty approval. The News has always been there, and we hardly deemed it necessary to proclaim ourselves. More than this, the leading Republicans of White Pine are with us. Senator Comins told us a few days ago the great and only issue now before the American people was bimetalism, and the party that came out honestly, fairly and squarely on that will get his support.

Senator Comins has been one of the leaders of the Republican party in Eastern Nevada, while the News has been a Democratic paper. Now there is a probability of their sinking partisanship and for the good of the State voting for a free coinage electoral ticket next November."

THE FOX MINING SUIT.

The suit of M. W. Fox against the Hale & Norcross Mining Company was resumed in San Francisco yesterday. The trial of the case was continued several weeks ago, principally for the purpose of getting service of summons on Senator J. P. Jones, and Francis G. Newlands, who represents the Sharon estate. Yesterday the action was dismissed as to the Sharon estate and Senator Jones, who the attorney for plaintiff said could not be found.

It now looks as if the suit was a stock-jobbing affair, and that the plaintiff while pretending to be anxious to make Senator Jones a defendant, did not care to do so. Everybody who reads the papers knows that Senator Jones was in California, while Plaintiff Fox pretended to be searching for him, and that he made no effort to conceal himself, as newspaper men were interviewing him on political and other matters of public interest almost daily in San Francisco.

Possibly the Fox case may have more in it than is anticipated, but it is certainly weakened by the pretension that Senator Jones was wanted and could not be found, when he was stopping at the Palace Hotel, San Francisco.

The Gazette, which is too hide bound to appreciate liberality in politics, should not judge others by its own standard. The JOURNAL merely states the fact that Senator Hill says he is unequivocally for silver, and it gives him no more nor less credit for that than it does Senator Stewart; in fact, it could cordially support the two for President and Vice President of the United States. The JOURNAL is not like its neighbor, afraid to say what it believes on the silver or any other question until the party bosses declare themselves for or against the proposition.

The Supreme Court of the United States upholds the Constitutionality of the Act of Congress prohibiting the use of the mails to lotteries. The Court says complete power is granted Congress to forbid the use of the mails in aid of the perpetration of immorality, and it must be left to Congress in the exercise of its discretion to determine what shall be excluded from the agencies of communication controlled by the Government.

The People's Advocate comes out squarely and manfully for free coinage. It says: "We care not whether it be a Democrat, Republican, Prohibition, Alliance or what not scheme, we are for a free silver President, and don't you forget it!"

HALE AND NORCROSS SUIT.

SAN FRANCISCO, February 2.—In the Hale and Norcross suit to-day Attorney Baggett questioned Mr. Hobart while on the stand as follows:

"Did you ever draw any check in favor of President Levy through E. Williams, President of the Bullion and Exchange Bank of Carson City?" Witness reflected, but could not remember. "Were not checks drawn in favor of Mr. Levy with your name attached?" "There may have been. My secretary was instructed to draw checks on demand of Mr. Williams on my authority." "For what purpose were they drawn?" "I do not know."

The checks which had been drawn by Hobart in favor of Levy as President of the Hale & Norcross Mining Company were produced. "Why, Mr. Hobart," questioned Baggett, holding up the checks, "did you draw a check for $1,806 in favor of Mr. Levy on July 9, 1890?" "I do not know," When questioned about other checks, Hobart said they represented Levy's share of the profits.

M. W. Fox, plaintiff, was recalled and identified the communication sent by him to the Directors of the Company on August 25, 1890, and in which he called attention to the operations of the Nevada Milling Company, and declared that a conspiracy existed to defraud the stockholders of the Hale & Norcross Company. The hearing will be resumed to-morrow.

Weather Indications.

SAN FRANCISCO, February 2.—Weather conditions and general forecasts, excepting some threatening weather in the southern portion of Northern California and in Southern California, are: Generally fair weather prevails in all Pacific States. The slight barometric depression over the lower California Coast is the cause of threatening weather in that region, and the existence of higher pressure area over the interior and upper country is the cause of fair weather. Generally fair and warmer weather is indicated for all districts, except scattering showers in portions of Southern California.

ON A THORNY SEAT.

Admiral Don Jorge Montt, President of Chile.

The head of the Chilean government is a man of strong common sense and good judgment, whose life began in poverty and obscurity and who has made his way to the greatest distinction possible in his own country, by the wise use of abilities not of a brilliant order. He was born at Casablanca, near Valparaiso, in 1843. When quite young he entered the Chilean navy, and after a course of study passed the examination, which made him a midshipman. He rose steadily in his profession, and in the war with Peru made a great reputation as commander of the corvette O'Higgins. Fearless in danger and a strict disciplinarian he acquitted himself as a model naval officer. He led the Congressional party in the successful insurrection against the tyranny of Balmaeda, and upon the overthrow of the tyrant was elected President of the Chilean republic. President Montt is a quiet, unassuming man, generous and honorable in all the relations of life. His is a difficult situation just now, and it is hoped that his government holds the people well in hand.

The Central Nevada says Indians are killing deer within a quarter of a mile of the railroad depot at Beowawe. Last week a herd of the timid creatures appeared in sight of the town, and so aroused the piratical spirits of the Indians that they borrowed every rifle in borrowing distance, and are now camped on the trail.

The Advocate says a bank of snow weighing one thousand tons, more or less, broke loose from the top of the mountain back of the Episcopal Church in Austin, and went tumbling and roaring down the mountain, making the earth shake, but fortunately doing no harm.

TWO CHAMPIONS.

Another Sparring Match and We Have Now Two Knights of the Arena.

Sparring matches seem to have become almost as epidemic in Reno as the grip. Monday evening in a down town hotel, Harry Bruno, a feather weight, and Chas. Casner, also a light weight, surrounded by a group of admiring friends, fought a five-round combat with five-ounce gloves. It was a glorious occasion, and the pugilistic battle could only have been equalled by the gladiatorial combats of the days of old.

The chief actors were both in excellent trim, the muscles of their shoulders and arms stood out like whip cords, and the kerosene lamp from a convenient shelf cast a baleful light on the two as they squared themselves for the combat. There were five rounds fought, each of uniformly increasing interest.

In the fifth round Bruce was knocked out and failed to respond when time was called. Casner was therefore adjudged winner.

Reno has two champions now, yet she bears her honors well. Anyone who might have walked down Virginia street yesterday would not have known the difference. It is only the knowledge of the possession of true glory and merit that causes its possessor to be still. There are other places not a thousand miles from here, Carson for instance, that would, with half the reason for self-glorification puff itself to the skies, but serenely conscious of our own merits we are dumb. Therefore bring on your fireworks.

If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a peculiar medicine, possessing, by virtue of its peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation, curative power superior to any other article. A Boston lady who kindly writes me, and whose example is worthy imitation, tells her experience below:

To Get

"In one store where I went to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla the clerk tried to induce me to buy their own instead of Hood's; he told me their's would last longer; that I might take it on ten days' trial; that if I did not like it I need not pay anything, etc. But he could not prevail on me to change. I told him I knew what Hood's Sarsaparilla was. I had taken it, was satisfied with it, and did not want any other."

Hood's

When I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I was feeling real miserable, suffering a great deal with dyspepsia, and so weak that at times I could hardly stand. I looked, and felt for some time, like a person in consumption. Hood's Sarsaparilla did me so much good that I wonder at myself sometimes, and my friends frequently speak of it." MRS. ELLA A. GOFF, 61 Terrace Street, Boston.

OUR ARID LANDS.

What the People's Advocate Says of Them.

The People's Advocate has the following on the "arid land" subject: One of the most graceful acts a man can perform is to acknowledge an error when he commits one. When he received the petition for signers, asking Congress to cede to the States the public lands in the arid States, to encourage irrigation, we deemed the proposition a good one, but on reflection we can see, in the light of all past experience, that the Government can handle the subject much safer than the States. We know that if the lands are ceded to the States, that the Legislature of the States will be controlled by the corporations and all that is left of our once princely public domain will be legislated to those corporations, as millions of acres have been, without any consideration therefor.

Anything touching upon the rights of the people, is construed into a "railroad" howl by the gimlet heads all over the country. We are as anxious to have our public lands devoted to irrigation as anyone can be, but we are equally opposed to placing these lands where they can be given to rich corporations, to the exclusion of the actual settlers, and needy, bona fide residents, by a corrupt or manipulated Legislature. We are full of the great Democratic principle—"the greatest good to the greatest number"—and know that the National Congress can be more safely trusted with handling these lands than such Legislatures as are common in the Western States.

You can always tell when the thief is approaching by the bark of the dog, and we are opposed to, and advise the people not to sign the petition to cede these lands to the States, but let them remain with the general Government, for the present, at least. "A burnt child dreads the fire."

THE NEW HALF DOLLARS.

What the San Francisco Report Says of Them.

The new half dollars are in circulation in San Francisco and are not a success from an artistic point of view. The critic of the Daily Report says: "The head on the obverse side of the coin is too large. It occupies too much of the space within the rim and so the coin looks smaller than it is. It is a grave mistake to design a coin or medal so as to make it look small. Neither is there any beauty in the head upon the new half dollar. It is the head of a man not a woman. If it is accepted as that of a woman, the type of female is of Barbary Coast coarseness. The artist must have sketched the profile of a petroleuse. The reverse of the coin is as badly crowded as the obverse. On the latter there is not room to get in the head without spoiling some of the lettering around it, and on the reverse there are so many arrows and branches and stars, etc., to get in, that the Bird of Freedom had to be reduced in size. So the new half-dollar makes its appearance with Liberty suffering from a swollen head on one side, while on the other is a dwarfed eagle. Hence we do not like the new half-dollar. Nevertheless we will give any of them shelter that may happen to come along. We may be critical, but nobody shall say that we are unpatriotic."

SAGEBRUSH PAPER.

A Discovery Which May Benefit the Districts.

Robert Laing of Boise City, Idaho, has discovered that sagebrush may be manufactured into a good quality of coarse paper at a profit. Experiments made by him prove that by using the lime process and treating the brush to a protracted boiling, he secured pulp equal to the very best wood pulp, and the presence of a very strong and long fiber was plainly demonstrated.

Laing claims that he can manufacture sagebrush paper at a small cost and make a profit by selling it at 4 1/2 cents per pound. He has gone East to interest capital and get means to enable him to develop his discovery.

Edison, the electric wizard, when he visited this coast a dozen years ago predicted that some good use would be made of sagebrush. He said that Nature never intended that a shrub which covered so much of the earth's surface as sagebrush does, should be worthless. Perhaps Laing may prove that it was intended to supply the United States and the rest of creation with paper.

IS THIS TRUE?

Cattlemen Complaining of Exorbitant Charges.

The Live Stock and Butchers' Gazette of San Francisco has this: "The wholesale butchers of San Francisco complain of what to them appears an extortionate charge on cattle, westward bound, passing Reno. Hay can be purchased outside of the corral at $5 to $6 a ton, but inside the corral, into which the cattle are unloaded for rest and water, the charge of $20 a ton is made. If the cattle are not fed hay at that point, which is often unnecessary, and, indeed, undesirable when cattle have only come a comparatively short distance, say from Lovelock, the corral man charges one dollar a carload for unloading and loading, though very often there is no help there to unload and the work is done by the brakeman and the man in charge. The butchers say that $10 or even $12 a ton for hay put in the corral, would give a fair profit, but that $20 is extortion. They do not complain of the railroad company but of the company's tenants, who lease the corral. They have asked us to call the attention of the company to the matter, believing that the company will regulate it, as it does the charges at the railroad eating houses on the several lines."

The World Enriched.

The facilities of the present day for the production of everything that will conduce to the material welfare and comfort of mankind are almost unlimited and when Syrup of Figs was first produced the world was enriched with the only perfect laxative known, as it is the only remedy which is truly pleasing and refreshing to the taste and prompt and effectual to cleanse the system gently in the Spring time or, in fact, at any time and the better it is known the more popular it becomes.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE STATE of Nevada, in and for Washoe County. The State of Nevada, to M. P. Murry, greeting: You are hereby required to appear in an action commenced against you as defendant by Mary P. Murry, plaintiff, in the District Court of the State of Nevada, in and for the County of Washoe, and answer the complaint therein within ten days after the service on you of this summons, exclusive of day of service, if served in said county, or twenty days if served out of said county, but within said district and to all other cases forty days; or judgment by default will be taken against you according to the prayer of said complaint. The action is brought to recover a decree of this Court dissolving the bonds of matrimony now existing between M. P. Murry, defendant, and Mary P. Murry, plaintiff, and for a decree awarding the care, custody and control of Edith Murry, the issue of said marriage, to plaintiff upon the grounds:

First—That you on or about the day of April, A. All of which will more fully appear from the complaint which is on file in the office of the Clerk of said Court at Reno, in said County, and to which you are especially referred. And you are further notified that if you fail to appear and answer said complaint, the said plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief demanded.

"German Syrup"

Here is something from Mr. Frank A. Hale, proprietor of the De Witt House, Lewiston, Me. Hotel men meet the world as it comes and goes, and are not slow in sizing people and things up for what they are worth. He says that he has lost a father and several brothers and sisters from Pulmonary Consumption, and is himself frequently troubled with colds, and he Hereditary often coughs enough to make him sick at Consumption his stomach. Whenever he has taken a cold of this kind he uses Boschee's German Syrup, and it cures him every time. Here is a man who knows the full danger of lung troubles, and would therefore be most particular as to the medicine he used. What is his opinion? Listen! "I use nothing but Boschee's German Syrup, and have advised, I presume, more than a hundred different persons to take it. They agree with me that it is the best cough syrup in the market."

POINTS ABOUT TIME.

VARIATIONS AND THE CAUSES WHICH PRODUCE THEM.

The Earth's Revolutions on its Axis, Together with its Journey Around the Sun, Are the Disturbing Factors—No Watch is Perfectly Reliable.

If there is one single scientific problem upon which more than another people appear to get mixed that problem is time. Standard time, local time, sun time are exceedingly difficult problems for the public to puzzle over, and when sidereal time enters the calculation the case is hopeless indeed. I have frequently of late seen so many letters addressed to this and other journals, all touching upon one or the other of these chronological questions, that I have concluded a short note explaining the main points of difference would be, at any rate, timely. It only suggests to the young men in the business offices an idea of going to work at 9 a. m., local mean time, and leaving off promptly at 5 p. m. Pacific standard time, the question will have been shown to possess a practical side. The application of it, however, is purely a matter of taste.

Well, to come to time, the great chronometer and regulator in chief to the business, social and scientific world is the earth itself. Turning upon its axis in the period which we divide into twenty-four hours, the sun appears to cross the meridian of each place on the globe once in that interval. The moment at which it crosses the meridian of any place (Greenwich, for example, is termed "local apparent noon" at that place. This would be all very well if the earth and sun remained fixed in their relative positions; or if the earth, completing, as it does, an annual revolution about the sun, did so uniformly in a perfect circle and that circle were in the same plane with the motion of daily rotation. Then the successive intervals between the meridian passages of the sun at Greenwich would all be equal, and a perfect chronometer set at 12 hrs., 0 min., 0 sec., when the sun transited today would indicate precisely the same instant for "apparent noon" at every date.

MOTIONS OF THE EARTH. But the earth's path around the sun is not a perfect circle; it is an ellipse, and the motion in one portion of the ellipse is more rapid than in another, and this causes a slight variation in the intervals between the solar passages. Again, the plane of the earth's path around the sun, or the elliptic, is inclined 23½ degrees to the plane of the equator in which the daily rotation takes place, and consequently twice a year the intervals of "apparent noon" are each about twenty seconds greater and twice a year about twenty seconds less than twenty-four hours. To explain just why this results would require more of an investigation into astronomical principles than is here contemplated; but it is so, nevertheless, and any text book will elucidate the reasons. A combination of the two effects causes the sun to be apparently slow fourteen minutes in February and fast sixteen minutes in November. But in the course of a year the average comes out all right, and therefore a "mean solar day" of exactly twenty-four hours is adopted in the almanacs and used for all purposes. This accounts for the difference between mean time and sun time. A regulator keeps the former; a sun dial indicates the latter.

A few years ago (or prior to 1884) every large city in the United States had its own local time, and this was for each place the true mean solar time, obtained as above indicated.

REGULATING TIME. Consequently, a man traveling westward from New York would find his watch fast, as follows: At Chicago, 43 minutes; at Omaha, 1 hour 16 minutes; at Denver, 1 hour 52 minutes; at Salt Lake City, 2 hours 20 minutes; and finally, at San Francisco, 3 hours 2 minutes. It will readily be recalled how much annoyance was occasioned by all these various corrections, both to trainmen and travelers. About the year mentioned a great reform was inaugurated. Nowadays a traveler going westward finds his watch fast from time to time, but only the hour hand is in error. All the clocks in the country indicate the minute and second of Greenwich mean time, but the hour is changed for each 15 degrees of longitude. Washington time is 5 hours slow of Greenwich; Chicago, 6 hours; Denver, 7 hours. In San Francisco we are 8 hours slow of the prime meridian. All the intermediate cities and towns are run on one system or another, according to their location in longitude, the standards being eastern, central, mountain and Pacific time. All the time pieces on the coast are set by Pacific standard time, which is 8 hours slow of Greenwich mean time. Therefore, a watch which is set at San Francisco solar time by means of a corrected sun dial is still 9 minutes 42 seconds slow of a Pacific standard time clock, because we are 8 hours slow in longitude west of the 120th meridian, which forms the eastern boundary of northern California and on which only is the "Pacific time" coincident with "local mean time."

A Lord in a Ditch.

Lord Mulgrave was distinguished by a singularity of physical conformation, having two distinct voices, the one strong and hoarse, the other weak and querulous, of both of which he occasionally availed himself. So extraordinarily a circumstance probably gave rise to a story of his having fallen into a ditch on a dark night and calling for aid in his shrill voice. A countryman coming up was about to help him, but Lord Mulgrave, addressing him in a hoarse tone, the peasant immediately exclaimed, "Oh, if there are two of you in the ditch you may help each other out of it."—London Tit-Bits.

Japs Like the Americans.

A traveler in Japan says that the Jap anese dislike the Russians and the Chinese, but like the Americans and the English. They are fearful of the aggressions of the Russians in Corea and of the Chinese in the islands that lie south of Japan; but they do not look for any act of aggression by the United States or by England.—Philadelphia Ledger.

A LITTLE FAMILY DIFFERENCE.

Two Old Ladies Differed Over a Small Matter, but the Elder Won.

Up on the Delaware and Hudson railroad the other day two nervous old ladies climbed on board the south bound train at Crown Point. They were of the same height, looked much alike and both of them wore gossamer rubber cloaks—possibly under the vague impression that cinders melt. They flattered into a seat near the door, evidently prepared for a long journey. When the bird cage, two satchels and three shoe boxes of luncheon had been properly stowed away, the two ladies sat down in unison, much as if pulled on one string.

Beyond a vigorous attack on the luncheon an hour later, they quietly devoted their attention to the scenery until Albany was reached in the late afternoon. That being the terminus of the road, the passengers started for the car door as the train stopped, but there seemed to be a blockade of some sort on the platform. It wasn't just exactly a blockade; it was the two old ladies from Crown Point.

Equipped with satchels, the bird cage and the luncheon (now reduced to one shoe box), they had led the procession to the door, but had succeeded in getting no farther, as the train had run into the station on a middle track, and they could not agree on which side of the car to get off.

"I tell you, Janet," said the old lady with the bird cage, with much dignity, "that this is the proper side. It is nearer the depot, and no doubt our train is close by. Come, don't be obstinate, sister," she added persuasively.

"I will not leave the car on that side," declared the other, holding up the shoe box and both satchels as if for a barricade, which the impatient crowd within the car thought quite superfluous. "If you think I am going to career across three tracks," she continued emphatically, "in front of moving locomotives, and risk ourselves and that precious bird, then I say, Hannah, you have lost your senses; that's all."

"You seem to forget that I am older than you, Janet," rejoined the other with offended dignity.

"That may all be, but little good it's doing. You would have scandalized the whole family at Cousin Maria Soper's funeral up at the Corners if I had not insisted!"

"Hey!" "What's the matter?" "Shake it up!" "Get off!" came in a chorus from the impatient throng inside.

"Sakes alive!" ejaculated the beligerent Janet, for the first time observing the crowd in waiting. "Come this way. Do come," pleaded the other.

"I won't." "You must; I insist," cried the elder sister, stepping hastily down to decide the matter. There was no further chance for argument. Already the other passengers were pushing out. So, with an expression of annoyance and fright, the second old lady tourist joined the other and the two rubber gossamers began their devious flight across the tracks and before waiting locomotives toward the station. They reached there at length, but it was apparent that something had happened.

"I told you so! I told you so!" almost screamed the younger sister as soon as she could catch her breath.

"You say you dropped it?" asked the other in troubled tones. "Yes; that horrid engine let off steam and I jumped. I suppose I dropped it then. Why can't engines hold their steam till they get out in the country, I'd like to know!"

"Well, never mind, Janet, we can get along," said the other soothingly.

"But I do mind, I suppose, Hannah, I ought to be thankful that you and the bird are safe, but just to think," she added, with almost a sob, "the whole of Aunt Lucinda's sponge cake gone, and we've only got to Albany."

And sure enough, some distance up the second track, reposing peacefully on the off rail, lay the familiar green outline of the last shoe box.—New York Tribune.

Two Bold Compliments.

A bold stroke to obtain liberty by means of a compliment was that made by M. de Maupertuis, who when a prisoner in Austria was presented to the empress, who said to him, "You know the queen of Sweden, sister to the king of Prussia?" "Yes, madame," "I am told that she is the most beautiful princess in the world." "Madame," replied the cunning prisoner, "I always thought so until now." This was as diplomatic as the words and action of the Marquis de Medina, a Spanish nobleman.

Queen Elizabeth, who had been admiring his eloquence, and complimenting him on it, at the same time begged to know who possessed the heart of so accomplished a cavalier. "Madame," said he, "a lover risks too much on such an occasion; but your majesty's will is law. Excuse me, however, if I fear to name her, but request your majesty's acceptance of her portrait." He sent her a looking glass.—London Standard.

The Craze for Souvenirs.

The popular craze for souvenirs which now prevails among persons who have money to spend is spreading in various directions. Formerly the silver spoon held undisputed sway, but now there are souvenir bracelets, souvenir napkin rings, souvenir buttons and souvenir fans. The silversmiths are kept busy getting up new and novel designs, and each jewelry store of any importance has its souvenir department. Spoons of course are still in the greatest demand. One young married woman in this town, who is an ardent collector of souvenirs, is the proud possessor of nearly 100 spoons, each representing a city or village that she has visited.—New York Times.

A Fine Word.

The following extraordinary word is given in Miss M. A. Courtney's "West Cornwall Dialect." "Pebokelohriost-witthel, spoken by fishermen in describing the peculiar model of a boat; is said to mean 'peel's head and conger's tail.'—Notes and Queries.

A physician says: "All emotions are capable of being propagated from person to person, so as to assume an epidemic form. Almost every age has witnessed such epidemics."

W. D. Howells in "The Shadow of a Dream" makes this apt remark: "Our miseries don't embellish our persons very much, whatever they may do for our souls."

BACILLI IN BLOOD.

Recent experiments as read before the last Congress of Surgeons at Berlin, leave no doubt that the true way to CURE THE SYSTEM OF MICROBIA is through the pores of the skin. It has been found that a remedy which kills the Microbi will also destroy the life of the patient; but it has also been found that the Microbi can be forced out through the skin, and it is in this way that S.S.S. relieves the system of poison.

HAVING SUFFERED much from Contagious Blood Poison, after using half a dozen bottles of S.S.S. I was RESTORED TO PERFECT HEALTH. You are at liberty to make any use of my statement that you wish.—J. CROSBY BYRON, 203 Third Avenue, Pittsburg, Pa.
